Mr. Richard A Reed
Deputy Clerk
Court of Appeals, State of New York
Albany, New York 12207-1905

In re: Town of Montauk, Inc. v. Hon. Pataki, et al., Motion No. 08/101

Dear Mr. Reed:

Your undersigned does reply, on behalf of the corporate movant herein, to your letters of February 27 and March 10 concerning the high Court's consideration of our motion to vacate its December 18th, 2007 Order dismissing the instant special proceeding. The issues presented are the timeliness of the appeal (CPLR 5513, 5514) and whether a constitutional question is directly involved to support an appeal as of right (CPLR 5601[b]).

In regard to the timeliness of the appeal, your appellant does humbly submit that this matter was irregularly and clumsily handled and that the irregularities are such that no Notice of Entry has been filed and served by the defendants which could render the instant appeal untimely pursuant to CPLR 5513, 5514.

In his March 5th letter to you, attorney Richard Cahn did submit that on July 17, 2007 he did file and serve a notice of entry of the July 13, 2007 Order of the Appellate Division by mail on your appellant. Mr. Cahn held that the 35 day period in which an appeal could be timely taken expired on August 21st, 2007 based on this service.

Mr. Cahn does further assert that "Page 3 of the Appellant's Preliminary Appeal Statement inconsistently states that Appellant was served on July 13th, 2007 and August 30th, 2007". He goes on to note that the subsequent Attorney General's notice dated August 30th, 2007 was untimely and then further asserts that the Notice of Appeal filed October 5th, 2007 was untimely (by one day) if the latter service was controlling.

Two defendants have, therefore, entered and served Notices of Entry of the July 13th decision while most of the defendants have not. The absence of defendant "The People of the State of New York met in Assembly", which appellant holds to be the primary constitutional miscreant in the proceeding, is especially important. It was personally served on December 8, 2004 with the affidavit of personal service filed in the record on February 4th, 2005 (see attached). The grounds for failure to accept this service by the Attorney General's office on behalf of the State Assembly has been refuted by the Petitioner/Appellant herein.

The court must now consider which or what Notice of Entry could or did start the statutory clock at issue. Your Movant/Appellant does humbly submit that the irregularities presented are such that no notice of entry has been submitted by the defendants which could render the instant appeal untimely pursuant to CPLR 5513, 5514.

In regard to whether a substantial constitutional question is directly involved in support of the appeal as of right (CPLR 5601[c]) the central questions presented are:

- 1.) Is Chapter 2 of the Laws of 1691 protected by New York Const. Art I §14?
- 2.) Does the legislature have the authority to extinguish charter-granted rights that survived the Constitution of the State of New York?

While Mr. Kahn says that there is a plethora of other than constitutional issues raised in Montauk's appeal, none is identified in their response to the court. The central argument of this proceeding concerns what entity is constitutionally entitled to discharge governmental functions in the Town of Montauk.

Appellant asserts that the 1686 Dongan Patent by the Crown of England ceded governing authority in the freeholders and residents of Montauk (through their trustees) to govern Montauk, and that this right survived under the Constitution of the State of New York.

Alterations and modifications have been made to the Constitution since at least the enactment of the Town Law in 1909, but it otherwise never contemplated giving the NY legislature the authority to abrogate the colonial Charters.

Chapter 2 of the Laws of 1691 holds that violations or suppression of the rights of freeholders under charters such as the Dongan Patent are enforceable against the New York State government as successor to the king.

The Town Law of 1909 by which the legislature claimed jurisdiction over the freeholders (property owners) of New York adverse to the Charters and NY Const. Art. I Sect 15 is challenged. The un-Constitutional nature of the legally fictitious "Town Board" entity that was imposed it in Easthampton and Montauk is raised.

Subsequent alterations to the NY Constitution including the purported 1962 repeals of Article 1 §§ 10, 13 & 15 are raised and the validity of the immediately subsequent addition of Article IX pertaining to home rule powers is challenged. The NY Assembly's claim to possess, or to create unto themselves, authority to override the discharge of governing powers under the colonial Charters is raised.

Accordingly, the rights of Montauk's freeholders (proprietors) and the juridical status of their trustee corporation must be recognized. This argument raises only Constitutional issues and no other

Respectfully,

Jason B. Kolodny, Esq.
